An avid adventure-seeker, Evelyn uses climbing to empower and connect people. Climbing not only improves an individual's tenacity, flexibility, strength and problem-solving skills, it can also build strong and lasting bonds between couples, kids and families.

Patience and encouragement are her coaching tools. Currently the head climbing coach of Down Syndrome Association Singapore, where she coaches her students by increasing their motor skills and confidence levels through climbing. Demonstrating climbing techniques, such as edging, with her students trying out alongside.

Her mission is to empower and transform people's lives through climbing. 'Adventure does not mean that you have to be extreme athlete or daredevil. It is an attitude and lifestyle choice. It represents your heart's intention and passion for life, consistently brings you to achieve the better and greater version of yourselves.' - Evelyn
