Climbing comes naturally to kids.

Many factors contribute to making climbing a uniquely rewarding activity for growing children. Climbing develops coordination, motor skills and balanced muscle development. But perhaps the greatest reward a child receives is a boost of confidence and self esteem as they face and overcome each challenge. Visually, the brightly coloured holds are magnets for little hands.

Children's health has become a topic of growing concern for parents and society alike. Urban environments are often limited by choice of activity while work demands limit our most valuable resource - time. Camp5 recognises these challenges and has adapted membership packages and policies specific to the needs of parents.

While we offer programs such as the Try Climbing session and Cicak Club for kids, we recommend and encourage all parents to learn the basic climbing skills, enabling you to utilise our facility with greater freedom, flexibility and value.
